Makes sense to me.

Note: a mushy melissa brain is better than the rest of ours together.

Attached are updated excel template files and an updated Scribe template. If the users want to see the fields we added/moved and import data into them, they will need to create their project using this as the template. Else, the samples table won't have an InstrumentID field or any of the air sampling fields we added. When importing however, they will still want to pick air sampling.

Make sense? Let me know if you see anything glaring, it's getting late and my brain is turning to mush.

Thanks.
Melissa
